

ACTIVATED SLUDGE PLANT FOR TREATMENT OF SEWAGE SOON TO BE OPERATED IN CITY LIMITS

Disposal Plant for Verdugo Woodlands to Be Used As Soon as Laterals Have Been Laid; Method Declared to Be Tried Out Success

Glendale now has an activated sludge plant for the treatment of sewage from Verdugo Woodlands!

Unknown to many people, the sewage disposal plant approved about four months ago by the city council, has been quietly constructed and is now ready for operation—as soon as the laterals have been laid to the sewer system.

This plant is located a short distance south of the wash and about a block west of Glendale avenue in the midst of the Ross orchard. Its presence would never be suspected by one coming within fifty feet of the plant. Around it is a wire fence upon which will be trained English ivy.

A twelve-inch sewer pipe connects the main sewer line on Glendale avenue to the plant. About fifty feet east of the plant proper the sewage passes a concrete grit tank about twenty feet long and two feet high and two and a fourth feet wide. This contains two twelve-inch channels. As the sewage passes through these any sticks or pieces of refuse are held back by iron grates.

Arriving at the plant proper, the sewage will flow into an open wooden trough about a foot square and twenty-eight and one-half feet long. The interior of this has been painted with a heavy coat of tar so that the trough will be waterproof and so that the sun will have the right chemical effect upon the sewage.

Sluice gates at the end of this trough will permit the sewage to fall into immense concrete tanks about twelve feet deep, sunk into the ground. These tanks are divided into two complete units which may be used separately or together. Each unit has a capacity of handling 75,000 gallons of sewage every twenty-four hours.

Units Are Divided

The outside dimension of the plant is twenty-five by forty-two feet. It is divided lengthwise by a concrete wall. A unit occupies each side of this partition. Each unit is further divided by a concrete partition into two separate tanks. The outer tank encloses the inner tank on three sides and, therefore, is considerably larger. All tanks are five feet wide.

The bottom of these tanks is serrated into troughs, about two feet deep and three and three-fourths feet from top to peak. In the bottom of each trough is a lead pipe an inch in diameter. This is connected to a vertical pipe up the side of the tank. The portion lying horizontal is perforated with small holes.

As soon as sewage has been let into the plant, air is forced through these pipes and up into the liquid in the tanks. This aerates the sewage and makes it suitable food for anaerobic bacteria who soon devour all particles of the sewage before it has had a chance to become stagnate or putrefy.

Do Work Over Again

After the sewage has remained in the tank a sufficient length of time, it flows into another tank adjoining the other tank on the east end. This is about eleven feet long and ten feet wide and its bottom slopes downward like an inverted pyramid. The particles including the bacteria, being heavier than water, sink to the bottom of this tank.

The purified water flows over the end of this tank into a trough which carries it a short distance away to a sump hole fifty by fifty feet in size and about eighteen inches deep where the water seeps into the ground.

Meanwhile, the heavy particles, known as "the sludge," are being pumped out of the bottom of the last tank and returned to one of the larger tanks in order that the bacteria may do their work over again.

TURMOIL FOLLOWS ABDICATION OF GREEK RULER

Navy Joins With Army In Anti-Government Uprising; March on Athens

By DAVID M. CHURCH
For International News Service.
LONDON, Sept. 27.—King Constantine of Greece has abdicated as the result of revolution, said official advices from Athens this afternoon. It had been reported since Tuesday night that Constantine had renounced the Hellenic throne, but it was not until this afternoon that the British government received official confirmation of the rumors.

It is understood that Constantine, in his letter of abdication, made no reservations.

There are two possibilities open: First—A military dictatorship at Athens.

Second—The ascent of Crown Prince George to the throne.

Venizelos May Return

Former Premier Venizelos, the "strong man of Greece," who became an exile when Constantine returned to Athens, may return to Athens.

The Greek cabinet has resigned. Martial law has been proclaimed.

A revolutionary army is marching upon Athens.

The revolutionists demand the protection of Thrace from Turkish occupation.

All Greece is gripped by revolutionary turmoil today. An Athens dispatch reports that the navy has joined with the army in the anti-government uprising.

In the confusion attending the uprising it is not known here whether the resignation of the Greek cabinet has been accepted.

Leaders of the uprising have established headquarters at Saloniki. They announce that they will retain Thrace "despite the demands of the Turks and the decisions of the allies."

Before tendering its resignation the Greek cabinet was in continuous session for many hours attempting to find a solution that would placate the people.

Crowds Fill Streets

Athens was described as a hotbed of excitement with the streets filled with crowds surging to and fro. Constantine gave out news (Continued on Page 12)

FALL AND WINTER URGES SCIENTIFIC EXTENSION OF EDUCATION TO HELP SOLVE WORLD COMMERCIAL PROBLEMS

Pendroy's First Annual Revue Brings Many Words of Praise From Guests

The mode of the moment in all its detail was displayed for the edification of the women of Glendale and vicinity, and the admiration of the male members of their families, in a most interesting and entertaining manner yesterday afternoon and night at Pendroy's first annual fashion revue given for the benefit of the building fund of the Tuesday Afternoon club and presented by William A. Howe at the Glendale theatre.

Included in the marvelous display of the latest as decreed by Dame Fashion were not only sport suits, tailored suits, street dresses, afternoon and evening gowns, but also an array of gorgeous wraps, coats, furs, blouses, combs, footwear, gloves, bags, hats and accessories.

Show Well Staged

The season's fashion for draped skirts, long waist line and side panels, making the stout look more slender and the slender more entrancing, thereby pleasing all the women, was most delightfully exemplified by the modes at last night's performance. All shades of brown from seal to beige and a generous share of fur to the lot of the smart costume, whether for the more formal evening wear or street suit. Silver and gold metallic cloth is popular for the small toque. Suits, coats and wraps are heavily embroidered both in self-color and contrasting hues.

The smart winter wardrobe includes gowns combining velvet and brocade, and velvet is even smart for jackets. Among the luxurious new fabrics introduced this season are Arabelle, Lustara, Gerona, Marvella and many others. Silks and velvets dominate the mode for afternoon costumes and the more serviceable pique twills and tweeds continue to be in demand for the tailored and sport suits.

Varied Program

The evening fashion revue opened with an organ selection by Paul Carson. This was followed by a song and dance "Nymphs of Fashion," composed (Continued on Page 9)

Captain Richmond P. Hobson at Forum Meeting of Chamber of Commerce, Pleads for Complete Study of Ills of Human Race

Captain Richmond P. Hobson was the principal speaker last night at the forum meeting of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce. His subject was "The Scientific Extension of Education as Applied to Commercial Problems."

Captain Hobson's talk was well received by the gathering which packed the dining room. Being a "dry" leader, his subject was along the lines of prohibition.

The meeting opened with the singing of America, led by Francis J. W. Henry. Rev. E. E. Ford pronounced the invocation.

In a brief talk, V. M. Hollister, president of the chamber, welcomed the new members. Then followed a brief outline of Glendale's sewer problem by Dr. Jessie A. Russell, chairman of the civics committee of the chamber.

Mrs. Helen E. MacMullin delighted the gathering with several contralto solos.

President Hollister told the gathering of a plan which Peter L. Ferry has for the making of a boulevard along the Verdugo wash. A sketch of the proposed boulevard was exhibited. The plan calls for a thirty-foot boulevard on each side of the wash. Mr. Ferry is chairman of a committee which is now at work on the idea.

It is declared that the plan would make it safe for future rains, improve the property and provide the city with a beautiful boulevard extending from Canada boulevard to San Fernando road.

Mattison B. Jones was introduced by President Hollister. The former in a brief talk, introduced Captain Hobson. Mr. Jones declared that June 3, 1898 made Captain Hobson the hero of the Merrimac, and that he is a patriot who won America and the world as well.

"Captain Hobson has been guided by a spirit of service," he declared.

Speaks of 'Little War'

Passing over as "a little war" his part in the Spanish-American war, Captain Hobson outlined his early work along scientific lines. He told of how he had been interested in things scientific while at Annapolis. Later the government assigned him to post-graduate courses in Europe to study naval problems.

"I studied war from the scientific standpoint," he declared. "A world war was predicted in 1894 by Captain Hobson, who after studying the problems, published his findings. These findings were discussed throughout Europe at that time, it was declared, but America paid but little attention to them."

Later he spent eight years on the naval committee in the house of representatives at Washington. "You folks in Glendale are in the center of the future empire, which will be the greatest that the world has ever known," he said.

Best Comes Here

"The best of Europe come to America, the best of America to California and the best of California to Glendale." Later in his speech he told of how a great scientific movement is taking hold in Los Angeles and Glendale as well in speaking of this great movement.

"Today is the dawning of a realization that the human race is a great living organization and are under laws as the human individuals are." (Continued on Page 12)

Twelve thousand dollars' worth of steel girders and steel plates will be used in the construction of the building. These have been ordered through the Los Angeles office of the Truscon Steel company of Youngstown, Ohio. It will be riveted into place by workmen employed by this firm.

Foundations are now being laid by men in the employ of the public service department. These should be ready in about two weeks. After that the length of time necessary to have the building completed will depend upon the promptness with which steel is received. Peter Deiterich, superintendent of the public service department, does not believe that the building will be ready much before the first of the year.

POINT OUT NEED OF JUNIOR HIGH

Teachers' Club In Discussion of Educational System; Convention Report

Junior high schools are meeting with great favor among the progressive communities of the east.

Excepting the lack of a junior high school, the Glendale city school system compares very favorably with that of any community of similar size in the United States.

These points were brought out yesterday afternoon in the auditorium of the Wilson Avenue Intermediate school at the term's first session of the Glendale Teachers' club.

Miss Carrie Noble, president of the club, made her report as a delegate this summer to the National Educational association.

This convention was attended also by Mrs. Mary O. Ryan, principal of the Broadway school; Mrs. Fanny O. Stone, principal of the Pacific school, and Miss Frances E. Jackson, member of the faculty of the Wilson Avenue Intermediate.

Better Trained Teachers

"Education and the Greater Democracy" was the theme of the convention, according to Miss Noble. She said that speakers emphasized over and over again the fact that teachers must be better trained, better paid and more conscientious. Salaries must be made such that they will attract men and women of high character. (Continued on Page 3)

DIRIGIBLE VISIT IS CAUSE OF MUCH EXCITEMENT

Other Events of Interest In Eagle Rock Reported to 'Daily News'

Employees of the Eagle Rock city hall were somewhat startled Tuesday morning shortly after 10 o'clock, when the sun that had been steadily streaming in the windows all morning suddenly darkened as if in a total eclipse.

All rushed out in the street wondering what had happened. Up in the air some 2000 feet soared a big army dirigible.

It had steered a course that in some manner obstructed the sun's rays from striking several of the buildings on South Central avenue, and for a period of almost five minutes it looked almost as dark as night in the city hall.

It was the army dirigible "C-2," one of the biggest types of dirigibles recently approved and accepted by the war department, and was acting as escort for two troops of United States cavalry that left Ross field for their station in Monterey yesterday.

The dirigible turned to the south as it reached a point approximately over Glendale, and disappeared over the mountain tops toward Hollywood.

Enrollment at College

The enrollment to date at Occidental college is slightly larger than last year, states the registrar at the college.

The total number of students enrolled is 456. Out of this number there are 232 women and 224 men students now in attendance.

Cupid Is Busy

"The Occidental," the college paper of Occidental college, makes the comment that Cupid had his most successful summer with Occidentals during the vacation just closed.

The paper printed a list of nine recent matrimonial ventures and four engagements. Three of the marriages and two of the engagements were of undergraduates.

These facts seem to indicate that wisdom is not the only thing college students smash into, according to one of the undergraduates who was in The News office yesterday.

Announces Phone Number

Mrs. William F. Hansen of 834 Rock Glen avenue, who has just completed the building of a beautiful bungalow court at this address, has just had a telephone installed in her home, and as it is now too late for her number to appear in the new Eagle Rock telephone book, she wishes to announce to her many friends that her number is Garvanza 1758.

Wife Files Complaint

Late Tuesday afternoon the Eagle Rock police were called to the residence of M. E. Keefe at 232 West Park avenue, and served a warrant on Mr. Keefe sworn to by his wife.

Keefe was placed in charge of a Los Angeles policeman who held the warrant for his arrest.

Mrs. Keefe stated that she filed the complaint for the reason that her husband had been under the influence of liquor since last Friday night, and that she felt that the children were not safe.

Held Last Night

The Eagle Rock Chamber of Commerce elected its new officers last night at one of the most exciting elections ever held since its inception.

O. J. Root of 269 North Salsuma avenue was elected president, and George Van Sands of The Daily News was elected secretary. F. E. Biles, local banker, was elected treasurer, and H. C. Warren, Dr. H. B. Crawford and A. L. McCammon were elected as the three vice-presidents.

The meeting was well attended, over 150 people being present.

Regular routine business including the reading of the minutes of the last meeting, was transacted, and the president, W. L. Miller, then spoke.

Tells of Accomplishments

He recited the accomplishments of the organization during the tenure of his office, naming as the most important the big electric sign that is to blaze forth at night to tell the world of Eagle Rock, and which will shortly be installed on the hill at the head of Eddy avenue.

Following this, it was ordered that those expiring to vote for the new officers must pay their yearly dues. A great many of the old members who had been in arrears promptly paid the $2.00 fee and some twenty new members took this occasion to join the organization.

Practically every one present was aware of the fact that a big "steam roller" had been oiled up and put in running shape.

Report Lively Contest

Some of the new members who had just joined, and were thereby privileged to have some voice in the election, caused a closely contested election.

After it was all over, every one seemed to be satisfied with the results, and there were congratulations all around. The meeting adjourned with everyone happy.

Mr. Root, the newly-elected president, is one of the best known men in Eagle Rock, being the "R" in the R and V Knight Motors.

Action Is Promised

The new secretary promises action, and plenty of it right from the start, and will undoubtedly arrange to maintain the office of secretary of the Eagle Rock Chamber of Commerce in The News office, at 113 East Colorado boulevard, so that he can be readily found at all times.

It was the opinion this morning of a great many of the members who attended the meeting last night, that Milton H. Berry, Jr., receive a vote of thanks from the entire organization for the work he has accomplished as a member of the publicity committee during the past year.

The next regular meeting will be Tuesday evening, when the new officers will get together and outline a campaign of publicity that will make folks all over the country know that Eagle Rock is "the best place in the world to live."

Eastern Star Hold Meeting, Banquet

The Southland Chapter O. E. S. of Pasadena put on the work of Eagle Rock chapter last evening at the Masonic hall. A banquet followed.

The decorations in the banquet room were in the form of a stuffed eagle surrounded by rocks to represent Eagle Rock.

Judge Cruzan was one of the singers of the evening, and the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Nair of North Fairmont avenue gave two dances. Mr. Ward of Hill drive did one of his famous tight rope walking stunts.

The banquet was followed by dancing and which was greatly enjoyed by all.

Makes Good Record Selling Chevrolets

Raymond Church who on Monday took a position with the Holiday Motor Sales Co., Inc., 222 East Colorado boulevard, Eagle Rock, agents for the Chevrolet, has hunk up a remarkable sales record in the few days he has been at work.

Tuesday, the last three cars on the floor were sold, including two coupes and one touring car. There is a big demand for closed cars, according to Mr. Church, who showed a letter just received from the Fisher Body company who makes the body for the Chevrolet, have just recently taken over six different plants to supply the increased demand.

Say Eagle Rock Is to Have Two Teams

There appears to be little doubt but what Eagle Rock is to have two ball teams, and that the first team organized by Sam Clark will continue to play ball.

Manager Clark has made the following statement:

"In regard to my ball club and the meeting of some of the boys that did not make the team, will say that my regular team is well satisfied, and there is no dissension. We will play ball next Saturday and Sunday at Eagle Rock park."

LEARN'S MOTHER'S DEATH

The English city of Sheffield is to have an automatic telephone system.

RECALL WAR DAYS INJUNCTION CASE AS CAVALRY GO THROUGH CITY HEARING ENDS; OPINION SOON

Eagle Rock Has Thrill When Regulars Stop on Way to Their Station

Recalling wartime days, Eagle Rock enjoyed a real thrill yesterday when two troops of the Eleventh United States cavalry rode down Colorado boulevard.

Above them, high in the heavens, acting as an escort soared the big army dirigible "C-2," one of the largest dirigibles ever seen on the west coast.

The cavalryman rode two abreast with a captain at their head and at the rear were two pack mules and the supply train. It took some ten minutes for the outfit to pass the intersection of Colorado boulevard and Central avenue.

A grizzled sergeant-major dismounted in front of the News office, pulled an army map from his blouse and inquired the direction to Glendale.

On Way to Post

He stated that they were on their way to their station, the army post at Monterey, and were under orders to report in camp not later than midnight October 9.

These were the troops of regulars that assisted in the war-time spectacle, "The Battle of Chateau Thierry" at the Pascent of Progress recently held in Los Angeles, and for the last ten days had been camped at Ross field.

As they jogged along Colorado boulevard it's a safe bet that there wasn't an ex-service man who stood watching them but what experienced happy recollections of the days when he used to sign the army payroll himself.

Won't Take Appeal

Mr. McNitt stated that if the judge rules in his written opinion as he intimated orally, that as city attorney of Eagle Rock he will advise the city not to take an appeal, as he feels that it would be a waste of money to attempt to reverse the decision in a higher court.

It is claimed that practically every one of the smaller cities in this section of Southern California have the same ordinance as

Diagnose Disease by Handwriting, Claim

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—The amazing assertion that from the handwriting on a letter or a note can be diagnosed disease and its exact location in the body of the writer was made by Dr. Albert Abrams of San Francisco, who is here to lecture before a medical body, in an exclusive interview given to the International News Service.

Not only can disease be diagnosed from handwriting but the sex of the writer, whether living or dead, and the location of the writer was made by Dr. Albert Abrams of San Francisco, who is here to lecture before a medical body, in an exclusive interview given to the International News Service.

"I know this sounds grotesque," said the scientist whose past discoveries have gone down in medical history, "but I have done it, my students have done it. There is nothing grotesque about it when one understands the electronic theory."

The electronic theory which Dr. Abrams worked on for more than ten years is based upon the accepted fact that all life is electronic motion. Dr. Abrams claims and substantiates his claim by 12,000 infallibly diagnosed cases, that all diseases are nothing more than the electrons jarred out of their normal positions, "electrons gone mad."

He states that all that is necessary is to combat the radio-activity which diseases by a certain process had made by counter-activity.

Milk Truck Backs Into Sedan, Claim

Late Tuesday afternoon Mrs. E. F. Swanson, 333 West Adams avenue, Eagle Rock, was backing her sedan out of the driveway at her residence. About the same time a milk delivery truck owned by the Calla Lily Creamery company was parked on the hill at that point.

The creamery truck was operated by George Mathiot of 1245 East Windsor road, Glendale. The driver is said to have released the truck brakes and backed into Mrs. Swanson's sedan, badly damaging one of the doors and denting the body and fenders.

pertains to zoning of hospitals that will be involved as to its validity by the ruling on this case. It may be several days or a week before the judge renders the written opinion.

Bullinger, who is now the possessor of Fairbanks' 600-acre mountain ranch at Mariposa, near Yosemite National park.

Wash Kidneys If They Hurt

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if Back Pains You or Bladder Bothers

Flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much meat and rich food may form uric acid, which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush out the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes, and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer irritates, thus often ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink. — Advertisement.

rooms there are not crowded, it is thought that they will be before the term is over. The board did not see how the school could accommodate the forty-six children whose parents have made application and did not see how it could receive one child and reject another.
The opening of another school room at the Columbus school was authorized. This will accommodate some of the children from the fourth and fifth grades at both Columbus and Pacific schools. Transportation on the Pacific Electric bus, which passes both school grounds, will be paid for children who live in the Pacific school district. This action was decided upon in preference to installing a bungalow on the Pacific school grounds. The board went on record opposed to temporary buildings wherever children could be accommodated in permanent buildings.
A committee from the Glendale Rotary Club, consisting of A. R. Eastman and David Crofton, requested the board of education to continue the work which their club has started in employing a teacher to visit the homes of crippled children who are unable to attend regular school. Superintendent White was instructed to make a survey of the situation with a view to complying with the request.
David Black, business agent for the district, was instructed to communicate with other school districts at once and find out what they do to keep down the cost of their school grounds. Immediate action was suggested in view of the tons of dust on the Glendale Avenue Intermediate and Acacia grounds.
The appointment of Mrs. Birden Anderson of 339 North Ramoart boulevard, Los Angeles, to the Wilson Avenue Intermediate faculty will be held Friday night in the new Acacia street school. A safety lesson each month is to be held in all of the schools, according to the decision of the board. Pamphlets on this subject will be furnished by the Automobile Club of Southern California.

German Debt to Be Paid In Dyes, Plan
WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Germany's debt of $250,000,000 for maintaining the American army of occupation on the Rhine is to be paid by means of dyes under a plan worked out by Secretary of State Hughes and approved by the reparations commission. The International News Service learned today.
The plan provides that the American share of German dyes shall not be paid in cash, but shall be credited upon the German account for the cost of maintaining United States troops in the Rhineland.
The allied governments have consented to this proposal, notwithstanding the fact that they raised strenuous objection when this government suggested some months ago that the United States expected to be compensated for the cost of maintaining the army of occupation before any payments were made on general reparations.
The situation with regard to German dyes is very complicated. While the peace conference was in session at Paris, negotiations on this subject were conducted at Spa, it being decided that twenty-five per cent of all German dyes should be turned over to the allies. Of this amount, the United States was to receive one-fifth, it being agreed that this government should pay for the dyes at market price. The other allied governments were to receive their shares without payment, the amount to be credited on the German reparations account.
These dyes have been delivered to the United States and distributed through the textile alliance, a voluntary body which operated for the good of the American dyeing industry and without profit.

Laddie Boy Pal to President Harding
WASHINGTON.—"Laddie Boy," President Harding's pet Airedale is more than just a pal in leisure hours. "Laddie Boy" is after a fashion the president's confidant.
Every morning, when the president leaves the mansion proper for the executive offices, "Laddie Boy" prances beside him and goes with the president into his private office and perches himself quietly on one of the guest chairs beside the great mahogany table at which the president sits.
"Laddie Boy" retains this perch sometimes more than an hour, jumping down and scampering out into the gardens behind the White House only when the hour arrives for the president's first caller, which is usually about 10 o'clock. While thus ensconced at the presidential side "Laddie Boy" finds it irksome to permit any other to watch the president at work.
At the end of the day, when the president retires from the executive offices and heads for the mansion by way of the garden-house arcade, he is greeted outside his office door by "Laddie Boy," whose joy at seeing the president often costs the president the price of having one suit of clothes repaired or cleaned. Few of the president's friends are believed to enjoy the friendship that the president bestows on his dog.

ter and ability into the profession.
"No teacher, who isn't thoroughly American and willing to teach our American ideals, has any right in the school room," declared Miss Noble.
Unequal educational opportunities for urban and rural children was denounced by the convention. The opinion was expressed that limited educational opportunities offered pupils in many country school districts did not make for the safety of the republic.
The Smith-Townner bill, providing federal aid for education, was approved by the delegates who seemed to think, however, that the national appropriation should be spent by local school boards.
A single standard of wages for teachers regardless of grade taught and depending solely upon professional skill and training was another suggestion made by the association. The point was raised that under the present system of compensation, teachers, who are especially adapted to teach the elementary grades will abandon these grades for grammar school and high school grades because the pay is higher.
Miss Noble reported that teachers are paid under the proposed system in Des Moines, Ia., and Atlanta, Ga.
Boston allows its teachers a year's leave of absence from the school system with full pay every seven years. This time she is expected to spend in travel and education. Flint, Mich., gives her teachers a bonus of $100 if they attend a summer course at Columbia university or other college of similar rank.
About 9,000 teachers attended the convention. Miss Noble asserted that association with them made one feel "most proud to belong to the teaching profession."
Miss Helen Lebo of Los Angeles explained to the meeting the opportunities offered by the University Extension Course, which is presenting a class every Tuesday afternoon in the Wilson Avenue Intermediate school. This is a study of "The Young Republic."
The class is taught by Frank Klingenberg.
Yesterday's meeting was well attended and nearly all of the local school teachers were present.

SOMETHING DOING FOR FIGHT FANS HERE TONIGHT

Modern Woodmen Will Have Good Card That Should Be of Real Interest

Tonight is the big night for local fight fans. There'll be something doing every minute at the Modern Woodmen of America hall, 1500 South San Fernando road.

When Young Stone and Arizona Wildcat mix there's bound to be something doing. The Wildcat will come from Burbank with the idea of adding new glories for that city. However, Young Stone has the interests of his town at heart and has promised to make good use of his hitting ability.

Recently Young Stone has paid particular attention to the scientific side of the game. Perhaps he has something up his sleeve along that line.

Meyers Likes Glendale. Ralph Meyers and Joe McGill will hardly fail to put up a good scrap. It's a question of Ingleside winning or Glendale. Meyers thinks Glendale a fine place, that is, the home of some good fighters.

Johnny McCrory of Burbank and Ralph Dodge of Glendale will mix. Smiling King of Glendale is matched with Young Welch also of Glendale. Young Fitzsimmons is matched with New King of Glendale.

The first fight in the new Woodmen hall should see a large crowd gathered to witness some real contests.

Tagging All Bases

The Reds took a stride to the front in the three-cornered battle for second place in the National League race by beating the Phils 15 to 8. The Moran entry thus moved ahead of the Cards into third place behind the Pirates.

Nehf came back to the race with a well pitched game, holding the Cards to nine hits and winning, 6 to 3. Some runs by Cunningham and Groh off the pitching of Haines decided the game.

With Vance winning his eighteenth game of the year, the Dodgers fell upon Genewich and Braxton and beat the Braves 12 to 5.

The Sport Crucible

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Henry Knight Groh, otherwise "Heinie," could place a careless heel upon the largest and most lubricated banana peel in New York the night before the world's series and quite a few estimable citizens far from chagrined would regard the incident as nothing short of providential.

Heinie took away from the Giants something more than $100,000 and one of the best outfielders in baseball, George Burns, in a big mid-winter deal.

He cost McGraw about $150,000 in all, and at the start of the season, it seemed like a sound investment. Students of form indeed, assured one and all that the acquisition of Heinie meant another National league pennant. On the contrary, they would have won it had Groh never played a game.

BASEBALL STARS OF OTHER DAYS IN CHARITY GAME

Baseball fans of twenty-five years ago would have gloried in watching teams of diamond stars of former years cavorting around Braves' field, Boston. In a special charity game played there recently, dim years were rolled back, and the diamond stars engaged in a game that was finally won by the old time American leaguers captained by Jimmie Collins. Upper photo: Three old timers who are not entirely strangers to ball fans today. From left to right are Bill Sarrigan, who managed the Red Sox up to a few years ago; Jimmy Barry, and Jimmy Collins. Below: Duke Farrell and old Cy Young talk things over before the start of the game. Young pitched and Farrell caught, for a few innings, with the winning team.

Little World Series Now About Assured

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 27.—A "little world series" between the winner of the Pacific Coast league pennant, winners and the winner of the series between St. Paul of the American association, and Baltimore of the International league is practically assured. Dr. C. H. Strub, president of the San Francisco club, announced. The St. Paul club has already agreed to terms and the Baltimore club has been invited to do so, Strub said. In case San Francisco wins the coast league pennant, the series will be played here, and if Vernon wins it will be played in Los Angeles. The series, according to tentative arrangements, would be seven games.

Giants Take Final Game From Cards

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—The New York Giants, newly-crowned National league champions, took another fall out of the St. Louis Cardinals when they captured their last scheduled game against the Cards yesterday afternoon, 6 to 3.

Haines, who started for St. Louis, was bombarded early in the pastime and in the fifth inning after a home run, single, double and triple had been hit off his delivery, threw the ball in disgust over the grandstand and left the field. North finished the game. Groh and Cunningham hit homers. Of the twenty-two games played between the two clubs this year, the Giants took thirteen and St. Louis nine.

Strangler Ed Lewis Retains His Title

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 27.—Strangler Ed Lewis today still held securely his title as wrestling champion of the world by virtue of his defeat of Renato Gardino in a finish match here last night. The stranger took two falls over the Italian after a fall had been called on himself early in the contest.

A weak knee has kept him out of the lineup in many games, and it was at the intervals the Giants played their best ball. In spite of this, McGraw has strung along with Groh from first to last and has had the latter in every game he was physically able to play.

He is in there now, although he is not hitting within forty points of his normal average and he is not fielding with his accustomed facility.

If Groh fails to start in the series, Frank Frisch will move over to third base and Johnny Rawlings step in at second, giving the Giants the same infield that played against the Yanks last year. Frisch is a better third baseman than Groh or anyone else in the league. Rawlings is above the average at second and a fine money player.

Helen Wills, the sixteen-year-old California girl, today stands out as a prodigy of the tennis courts. Not even the famous star of other days, May Sutton, begins to compare with Helen Wills in the number of titles held at the same age.

Helen Wills today holds the United States girls' title—her second successive win—the U. S. woman's doubles championship and she played the final for the woman's singles being defeated by the champion Molla Mallory. She has also won innumerable state tournament titles and important invitational tournaments. It would seem that in this child the United States sees the logical successor not only of Molla Bjurstedt Mallory as the American title holder, but of Suzanne Lenglen of France, the unquestioned world woman champion.

It is not often that we hear much on this side of the world as to what European athletes are doing, but when the news does break through it is of a startling variety. Within the last three weeks Panvo Nurmi of Finland has broken four world records and cracked them so badly that his times make the previous record holders look like novices. Since August 29 Nurmi has broken the 2000 meters; 3000 meters, 5000 meters and three-mile world titles. The metric records were formerly held by Zander of Sweden, one of the greatest distance runners Europe knew of a few years ago, while the three-mile record was held by that former—up to Nurmi's performance—greatest of all distance men Alfred Shrubbs. When we look back and think of Shrubbs and all his records and consider that Nurmi actually took 51-5 seconds off the Shrubbs record it is enough to say that "Nurmi has the goods."

BULL MONTANA TO MEET ROMANOFF AT WRESTLING

Big Fellows Will Grapple Tonight; Classy Card for Boxing Bouts

With a heavyweight bout between Bull Montana and Constantine Romanoff as the main attraction the regular bi-monthly entertainment of the Los Angeles Newsboys' club scheduled for tonight is expected to attract a larger crowd than at any time since the affairs were started several months ago.

Montana, whose ugliness is more of a virtue to him than beauty is to most people, has been training steadily for the match for the past two weeks and is prepared to give all he has to the giant Greek. Romanoff weighs about twenty pounds more than the film "beauty."

Prior to the wrestling match the "newsies" will be entertained with several high class boxing exhibitions, the main event having been announced by Manager and Matchmaker Carlos Curtis as a four-round go between Young Joe Rivers and Kid Chile.

Joe Rivers is the chap who recently received a draw decision with Fidel La Barba and is regarded as one of the most impressive looking youngsters in the south. Battling Red and Johnny Cooper will "do battle" in the semi-windup, while Benny Miller and Joe Fox will appear in the curtain raiser. A real, honest-to-goodness battle royal will also be staged during the evening.

Arrange Classy Card

George Blake, high mogul of all boxing enterprises at the Los Angeles Athletic club, has announced that a real major league fight card will be staged at the club on Thursday night of this week. With the help of Charlie Keppen, Blake has arranged the following list of fistic encounters: Ad Allegri vs. John Grella, Harry Graham vs. Eddie Gleason, Ned Golden vs. Joe St. George, Russell Beardon vs. Jimmy Moorhouse, Joe Pim vs. August Gatto, Joe Schlicker vs. William Zukle, Joe Salas vs. Manuel Martinez.

The first college football contest of any consequence to be staged in the southern part of the state this year is but a week and a half away, when Coach Gloomy Gus Henderson's University of Southern California Trojans will travel up to Claremont for their annual gridiron tussle with the Pomona Sageshens.

Until last year Pomona was considered as the strongest U. S. C. rival in the southland's collegiate ranks, and Coach Eugene Nixon, is determined to regain some of the ground lost last year on Bovard field when the Cardinal and Gold Backs crossed the Pomonans' goal line more than in any previous year. Pomona is unquestionably stronger, both on the offensive and defensive, than at any time during the 1921 season. This holds true particularly on the line, which is estimated at being an improvement of from last year.

The return to school of Macy Chambers, who was the outstanding tackle of the conference in the 1920 season, has been a cause of considerable rejoicing by Blue and White followers. He will be assisted on the line by such sterling tankard athletes as the Dyer brothers, Robertson, Thomas, Mooney and Daggs. The backfield will probably consist of Capt. Ray Wilson at quarter, Clarke and Doughty, halves; Collins or Kennedy, full.

GEORGE BEBAN'S LATE FILM HERE

'The Sign of the Rose' at Glendale Theatre Story Holding Interest

In "The Sign of the Rose," George Beban has added another picture to the many worth-while productions in which he has been starred. It is to be seen at the Glendale theatre today and tonight.

The Italian, Pietro Baletti (played by George Beban) falls under suspicion of having kidnapped the daughter of a wealthy man, while Philip Griswold, an idler, had pressed for money, had kidnapped the little girl.

Later he writes an illiterate "black hand" letter, demanding heavy ransom, and by telephone hints that an Italian who had previously delivered a Christmas tree should be traced and questioned.

How Mrs. Griswold's eagerness to pay, and how she was told to bring the money to a flower shop weaver a story that will interest all who see this picture. The Italian's longing for a rose to place in the hands of his daughter who has just been killed, adds to the many complications that enter into the story.

STANFORD GAMES SCHEDULED FOR HOME CAMPUS

Seven of Eight Contests By Football Squad to Be Staged at University

STANFORD, Sept. 27.—Eight games, seven of them on the Stanford turf, and four coast conference battles, are included in the final Stanford schedule for the 1922 grid season, which was ratified by the newly-arrived head coach of the Cardinals, Andrew Kerr.

Owing to the late matriculation date of the university, October 1, Stanford does not open the grid season until October 7, when Coach Bob Evans' powerful Olympic club team will meet the Cards. The remainder of the schedule includes Santa Clara, October 14; St. Mary's, October 21; Oregon Aggies, October 28; Nevada, November 4; University of Southern California, November 11; Washington, November 18; and California, November 25.

Only One Game Away

All contests are at Stanford, with the exception of that with O. A. C., which is at Corvallis. The Stanford second varsity will play a schedule of games, including the California Polytechnic at San Luis Obispo, October 21; Mare Island Marines at Palo Alto, November 4; and California second team at Berkeley, November 11.

The California-Stanford freshman game is scheduled for November 11.

South America Has Way to Hit French

PARIS.—Argentina and Uruguay are making commercial reprisals for the recent decrees of the French ministry of agriculture forbidding the importation of foreign cattle, according to Paris newspapers. Stockbreeders in the South American countries, who formerly purchased fancy cattle for breeding purposes in Normandy and other parts of France, are now patronizing Belgian and German breeders. Germany is said to have imported from Argentina alone so far this year 100,000 tons of fresh meat and 100,000 tons of frozen meat.

TWO SERIOUS MINDED

"To withstand steadfastly the allurement of life, yet pass no censure on those who yield to them, denotes a gentle breadth of character far removed from the complacent self-esteem of the unco guid."—Agnes Repplier.

What a strain it is to see a great deal of a person who is too serious minded.

It is a fine thing to be responsible, to be a good citizen, to have strong principles and a high sense of honor.

Life Is Earnest, But—
It is a misfortune to let one's sense of the serious side of life so dominate one that one is always in deadly earnest, always talking about serious things, never able to relax and forget for a short while that life is real, life is earnest and the grave is merely a gateway into a life which is still more real and earnest,—and uninteresting.

People who take themselves and their principles too seriously are always in danger of bringing the principles they care so much about into disrepute through the antagonism their over-seriousness sets in action. Nothing does more harm to Christianity than a sour and self-righteous attitude. It is human nature to react from any excess to the other extreme.

Like the Pharisee
And then, too, the serious-minded person is in deadly danger of the besetting sin of the serious minded,—self righteousness. He sees a world of frivolous people about him who don't seem to have any sense of the deeper things of life (though often they have far more of it than he suspects) and he sees himself a self-appointed custodian of the things that count, and how can he help feeling that he is not as other men? Perhaps he is sufficiently advanced to recognize that other men are not wholly to blame, that they were born that way, but just the same he can't help an inner congratulation, expressing itself in an outer smugness that the Lord made him different.

Can You?
Do you remember one of the conditions of Kipling's "If" that bears on this tendency.
"If you can wait and not be tired by waiting,
Or being lied about don't deal in lies,
Or being hated don't give way to hating,
And yet don't look too good or talk too wise."

I do not think there is any harder condition in that whole description of the qualities that make a man.

I am sure the man who fills the conditions of Kipling's "If"—is not too serious minded, just enough so to be a good citizen and just little enough so as to be a good companion. And what better combination, when you come right down to it, could you get?

MAGAZINE GIRL FIGHTS SUIT SEEKING TO ANNUL MARRIAGE

Madeline G. Pollock

Refuses to be cast aside like 'plaything,' she avers. Says rich husband grew tired of her. Were happy for two years.

Seventeen When Wed, Not 19, Is His Ground; He Knew It Then, Wife Declares In Answer

NEW YORK—Madeline Gilder-sleeve, twenty, blue-eyed and beautiful, upon whose pretty features James Montgomery Flagg, Howard Chandler Christy and other famous designers of magazine covers looked with open admiration, before her marriage in 1919 to Leonard W. Pollock, declared she will not be cast aside like a plaything by her rich young husband, who is suing for annulment.

He charges she was only seventeen at the time of their marriage. "He knew that at the time," she counters in her demand for $100 a week alimony. Madeline is destitute now, she says, and refuses to be relegated back to poverty after having lived for two years in the boundless luxury which Pollock, who is only a few years her senior, provided for her.

Mrs. Pollock, who lives in Westport, Conn., with her mother, Mrs. Amelia Gildersleeve, is twenty, tall, slender, with much chestnut hair, and big blue eyes.

Says Parents Object
Her husband, a few years her senior, is an officer of the Atlantic Can company of 463 Greenwich street, of which his father, William, is the head. It is to the objections of his parents that Mrs. Pollock attributes his suit.

Pollock's complaint alleges that when they were married in this city on October 6, 1919, the girl pretended she was 19, when actually only 17. He gives this as a reason for seeking a severance. He adds, too, that she was a wife in name only.

Lieutenant J. M. Goddard of No. 799 Broadway, her attorney, described her plight thus:

"It is the case of a millionaire's son who had gone on a lark and thought the lark would be over when he paid for it."

Mrs. Pollock said: "I was introduced to Leonard at a New Year's Eve party the last day of 1918. He was a persistent wooer and held forth his wealth as an attraction. He was a lavish spender and extremely attentive. I told him I was too young—that I was only 17. He sought my mother's consent. She protested I was too young. But his persistence finally overcame our objections, and mother consented to our marriage. He is not telling the truth when he says I concealed my age from him."

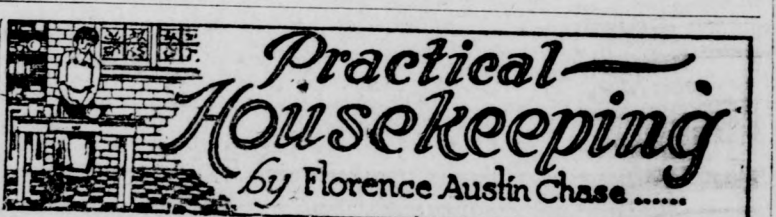

"For two years we lived in bliss. We swept through life on clouds of happiness. Whatever I desired was mine. An automobile was at my disposal. He spent $2000 a year on my clothes. He gave me $50 a week for pin money."

"But all this time his parents were protesting to him against his marriage. Finally, on August the 19th, 1921, he suddenly told me he was through."

Grew Tired of Her
"He said he was tired of me, that he would no longer support me, that I would have to provide for myself."

"I pleaded and wept and argued, but it was to no avail. For ten weeks he sent me $10 a week. Then this allowance ceased. I had gone back to live with my mother. She is a widow and in poor circumstances. I was in destitution when he filed suit for annulment."

"I am going to fight that action. I am asking $100 a week alimony. I do not want his money. But he cannot cast me aside as though I were a plaything that had gotten on his nerves."

PREPARING AND SERVING MEALS

The preparation of a number of dishes assembled for a meal requires a skill quite different from that necessary for the making of a single dish. A menu being decided upon, it needs an accurate sense of time, forethought and promptness, to have a number of dishes ready at the same time, or in proper sequence if several courses are served. We have several questions to ask ourselves in this connection, such as:

What steps in preparation can be taken ahead of time, as washing, paring, cutting, etc.?

What dishes take the longest to cook?

Which must be served the moment they are done?

Which can be kept hot for some time without injury?

Which can be finished and cooled perhaps several hours before?

Do the dishes selected require the same utensils at the same time?

What is the order of serving?

The fact is obvious that in preparing a meal you cannot finish the dishes one at a time, but that steps individual to each dish must be interwoven with each other, and the cook must have them all in mind and often she must do a half dozen things at once.

The woman doing her own work will develop many ways of easing and shortening the labor just before the meal is served, avoiding haste and anxiety in this way. With the fireless cooker and other slow cooking apparatus, the heavy work may often be done far ahead of meal time. A dessert can be prepared and be cooking as the breakfast dishes are washed, and at the time left-overs are being put away they can be arranged for serving, as in the case of poultry or meat to be served cold; vegetables cut up ready for re-heating or in the salad, etc.

There are several important points in serving each dish, and among them I might mention: Each dish should be perfectly done, neither over nor undercooked. All hot dishes should be served hot, and cold dishes cold. Luke-warm food is not palatable. Bread and cake and some kinds of pastry are the only foods that may be served at the temperature of the room. Sliced meat and salads should be served cold. Chill cream puffs and chocolate eclairs

Diet and Health By Lulu Hunt Peters, MD.

Author of "Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories"

RABIES (HYDROPHOBIA)

Hydrophobia is an acute specific, communicable disease which can be fatal within a few days. Dogs, on account of their roving habits, are chief disseminators of it.

The disease is transmitted usually by the bite of animals which are actually diseased at the time, only. There is a rather widely prevalent idea that a person bitten by a dog may develop hydrophobia any time in the future if the dog should happen to acquire the disease. This is not true. The disease is transmitted only if the dog actually has the disease at the time that it bites the individual.

On account of the lax laws in the United States regarding the muzzling of dogs, hydrophobia frequently becomes an active danger. This increase can be blamed largely on the sentimental, well-meaning, but misguided so-called dog lovers who actively work against the passage of all muzzling laws.

If these misguided individuals could ever witness the agony suffered by one human afflicted with hydrophobia, they would not be stirred to such vociferous sympathy for the inconvenience a dog might experience from a muzzle. And if they could realize the agony that a dog itself suffers, and really dog lovers, they would be willing that all dogs be inconvenienced by muzzles to save one dog from hydrophobia. This is a point they seem to forget—that the muzzling prevents the dogs from hydrophobia just as it does the human family.

While other animals, wolves, fox, deer, cats, cows, horses, pigs, can have the disease, nine-tenths of the disease is disseminated by dogs.

Hydrophobia is said to be the most agonizing disease known, and it is the only disease we know of which when contracted is practically always fatal, unless treated. However, there is no disease more easily prevented than hydrophobia, and it should be our duty to help eradicate this awful disease rather than to aid in its propaganda.

Not all bites from an animal suffering from hydrophobia transmit the disease. Only 30 per cent. If you are bitten by a dog or a cat or any animal suffering from hydrophobia, the chances are one in three that the virus of the hydrophobia which may be in the suffering animal's saliva will be transmitted to your tissues.

The common name for rabies, hydrophobia, was coined when it was thought that dogs suffering from the disease were afraid of water—hydro, meaning water, and phobia, meaning fear. However, it is not true that they are afraid of water. They often will rush into water but they may not be able to drink it because of the paralysis of their throat muscles.

Hydrophobia is caused by a protozoan—the lowest form of microscopic one-celled animal life. They are known as the Negri bodies, from their discoverer.

If your dog should show a change of disposition, becoming melancholy or depressed, or should become very irritable, cross, restless and begin to bite and swallow sticks and stones or other foreign bodies, he immediately suspicious of him and keep him where he can be watched without doing any harm. Do not kill him even though he should bite someone, but keep him under lock and key and see if he develops the disease. It would be manifested within ten days according to Rosenau.

The bite from any dog, however, should immediately be treated. The usual local treatment is to tie a ligature above the wound, make the holes larger by a free incision so that the blood will flow freely and wash away as much of the poison as possible. The wound can be sucked, (unless there should be some cuts in the mouth), in order to draw out more of the virus, and then it should be disinfected.

There are several means of keeping food hot after cooking. Hot and times keep food hot over hot water or steam. The housewife will use double boilers, one utensil set into a larger one, filled with boiling water. Some dishes can be placed in the warming closet above the gas or coal range oven, while others can be kept hot by placing them over a simmering burner with an asbestos mat underneath. The food may be kept covered unless it will steam, in which case cover it with a towel. Serve in hot dishes.

To cool foods quickly, put dish in pan containing cold water and change the water as it warms; then put it in the refrigerator and leave it there until the last possible moment. Sometimes serve with ice, such as butter, celery, radishes, olives, oysters, and the like.

It is almost impossible to use gelatine for molded dishes without ice, since such a large quantity of gelatine must be used to produce results, it has too strong a taste of the gelatine. Gelatine dishes should be made far enough ahead of time of serving to mold perfectly with the smallest amount of gelatine possible.

Guaranteed for pyorrhea

Now, for the first time in the history of dentistry, it is possible to obtain a treatment for Rigg's Disease (Pyorrhea) on terms of "your money back if it fails."

If you are a sufferer from this dread disease you have sought in vain for a remedy backed by any such guarantee.

Your dentist may be one of the many who are using DENTOMEL regularly in their practice and he may have told you that nothing he ever has tried has been so uniformly successful and so permanent in results. Ask him about it.

Or, better still, get a bottle from your druggist and try it at our risk. So simple and easy are the directions for removing every bit of tartar, pus and film from the teeth and for hardening the gums and setting loose teeth firm and tight that anybody can apply it at home.

Remember, if DENTOMEL fails to rid your mouth of all traces of Pyorrhea and its effects you have only to return the bottle to your druggist to get your money back.

FACIAL MASSAGE NO. 2

Most women are familiar with the motions in massaging the complexion. The strokes are upward and outward; they start at the forehead between the eyes, smooth out the frowning lines across the forehead, iron over the crows feet at the edges of the eyes and come in again towards the nose, which is stroked from its tip to its tip with particular pressure on the nostrils. The motion begins again at the chin, crosses the mouth to smooth out the ugliest wrinkles of all, lifts the sagging muscles of the cheek and the fingers end their stroke in front of the ear.

This with variations is all there is to that mysterious and often costly rite called facial massage. In my opinion any massage stroke which does not pull down the muscles, or which does not stretch the skin is beneficial. It isn't the variety of massage as much as the fact that there is massage at all which counts, for this massage is stimulating and brings the blood up to the face, clearing congested pores and feeding impoverished tissues.

The second most important consideration is what sort of cream should be used.

This is an important point because an oily skin does not want an oily cream, and a sensitive skin cannot stand a heavy one. Neither will a wrinkled skin benefit greatly from a cream that is only cleansing. You must experiment until you have found one that suits you best. A cream made from olive oil will not harm the most sensitive complexion and is always beneficial.

Rose—The most convenient way to handle henna is to get it in powder form. I will be glad to mail you directions for using it upon receipt of a stamped addressed envelope.

Edna—Many women are troubled, as you are, with growth of hair on the lip, but they keep it from disfiguring them by extracting all the coarse or dark hairs with tweezers that have blunt ends, bleaching the fine hair if it shows. The reason for using blunt tweezers is because they grasp the hair, pulling it out from below the skin, whereas sharp ends clip off the hair like shaving.

Hettie—Use cream abundantly every day and after you have fully recovered from these operations your skin will not be so in need of feeding. A plain oil is not satisfactory for the complexion as a cream but a cream, to be nourishing, must be made of vegetable oils.

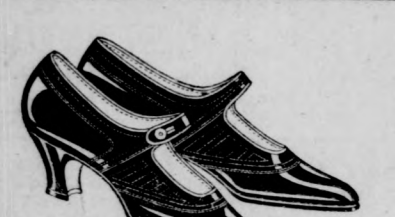

Tomorrow—A Bleaching Cream
All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So, if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor. Protected by George Matthews Adams.

DOUBLE PREDICAMENT

Two acquaintances met in a polling booth on the day of the municipal election and both proceeded to examine the list of candidates.

"George," remarked one voter, "I don't want to vote for any of these men—I don't know one of them."

"I'm in the same position, Joe," replied the other sadly. "I know them all."

The Riddle of the Frozen Flame

By M. E. & T. W. HANSEW

Copyright, 1922, by Doubleday, Page & Company.

"What's that, my lord? What has the Frozen Flame to do with all this? Why, the answer to that is as simple as A. B. C. The Frozen Flames, or that most natural of phenomena, marsh-gas—of which I won't weary you with an explanation—arose from that part of the Fens where the rotting vegetation was at its worst. What more natural, then, than that this human fiend should endeavor to shape even this thing to his own ends? The villagers had always been superstitious of these lights, but their notions had never been particularly called to them before the story of the Frozen Flames had been carefully spread from mouth to mouth by Brellier's tools.

"Then one man, braver than the rest, ventured forth—and he never came back. The story gained credence, even with the more educated few. Another, unwilling to conform to public opinion, did likewise. And, he too, went into the great unknown. The list of Brellier's victims—supposed, of course, to be burned up by the Frozen Flames—grew fairly lengthy in the four years that he has been using them as a screen for his underhanded work. A guard—and I've seen one of the men myself during a little midnight encounter that I had with him—went wandering over that part of the district armed with a revolver. The next day a stranger caused him to use this weapon. Meanwhile, behind the screen of the lights the bank robbers were bringing in their gold by motor and hiding the sacks down in a network of underground passages that I also discovered—and traversed. They ran, by devious ways, both to a field in Saltfleet conveniently near the factory, and by another route up to the back kitchen of Merriton Towers.

"You'll admit that, when I discovered this to be the case, I felt pretty uneasy about Sir Nigel's innocence. But a still further passage, which ran straight into the study of Withersby Hall, occupied by the Brelliers, and was hidden under the square rug in front of the fireplace. A nice convenient passage to the spot for our friend here to carry on his good work. Just a few words to say that he didn't want to be disturbed in his study, a locked door, a rug moved, and there you were. The next day from all prying eyes to investigate the way things were going, and to personally supervise the hiding of the gold. While outside upon the Fens men were being killed like rats, because one or two of them chose to use their intelligence, and wanted to find out what the flames really were. They found out all right, poor devils, and their widows waited for them in vain.

"And what does he do with all this gold, you ask? Why, ship it, by using an electrical factory where he makes tubings and fittings—and a good deal of mischief, to boot. The sovereigns are hidden as you have seen, and are shipped out at night in fishing boats, loaded below the water mark—I've helped with the loading myself, so I know—en route for Belgium, where his equally creditable brother, Adolph, receives the tubes and invariably ships them back as of the wrong gauge. Look here—" He stopped speaking for a moment and, stepping forward, lifted up another tubing from the table, and unfurled it at one of the joints. Then he held it up for all to see.

"See that stuff in there? That's tungsten. You don't all know what tungsten is. Well, it's a valuable commodity that is mined from the earth, and which is used expressly for the making of electric lamps. Our good friend Adolph, like his brother, has the same twist of brain. Instead of keeping the tubes, he returns them with the rather thin excuse that they are of the wrong gauge, and fills them with this tungsten, from the famous tungsten mines for which Belgium holds first place in the world. And so the tube is shipped in absolutely free of duty, while our friend here loads it, supplies the raw material to one or two firms in town, trading under the name of Jonathan Brent (you see I've got the whole facts, Brellier), and uses some of it himself for this factory, which is the 'blind' for his other trading ideas. Very clever, isn't it?"

The judge nodded.

"I thought you would agree so, my Lord. Even crime can have its clever side, and more often than not the criminal brain is the cleverest which the world produces.

"Where was I? Ah, yes! The shipping of the stuff to Belgium. You see, Brellier's clever there. He knows that the sudden appearance of all this gold at his own bank would arouse suspicions, especially as the robberies have been so frequent, so he determines that it is safer out of the country, and as the exchange of British gold is high, he makes money that way. Turns his hand to everything, in fact. He laughed. "But now we're turning our hands to him, and the law will have its toll, penny for penny, life for life. You've come to the end of your resources, Brellier, when you engaged those two strange workmen. Or, better still, your accomplice did it for you. You did not know they were Clegg and his man, did you? You didn't know that on that second night after we'd worked there at the factory for you, we investigated that secret passage in the field outside Saltfleet Road? You didn't know that while you were down there, passing in the darkness with your man Jim Dibbs—or 'Dirty Jim', to give him the sobriquet by which he is known among your employees—that we were hidden against the wall opposite to that first little niche where the bags of sovereigns stood, and that—though I hadn't seen you—something in your voice struck a note of familiarity in my memory? You didn't know that, then? Well, perhaps it's just as well, because I might not be here now to tell this story, and to hand you over to justice."

CHAPTER XXVII

For the sake of le bon dieu, man, cease your cruel mockery!" said Brellier, suddenly, in a husky voice, as the clerk rose to quell the interrupted flow of oratory, and the court banged his mace for quiet.

"You didn't think of the cruel mockery of God's good world, which you were helping so successfully to ruin!" continued the detective, speaking to the court but at Brellier, each word pointed as a barb, each pause more pregnant with scorn than the spoken words had been. "You didn't think of that, did you? Oh, no! You gave no thought to the ruined home and the weeping wife, the broken-hearted mother and the fatherless child. That was outside your reckoning altogether. And, if hearsay be true (and in this case I believe it is) you even went so far as to kill a defenceless woman who had been brave enough to wander out across that particular part of the Fens just to see what those flames really were. And yet, your lordship, this man howls for mercy."

He paused a moment and passed a hand wearily over his forehead. The telling of the tale was not easy, and the expression of "Toinette Brellier's tearful eyes added to the difficulty of it. But he knew he must spare no detail; in fairness to the man who stood in the dock, and in whose service he had unraveled this riddle which at first had seemed to be inexplicable.

Then the judge spoke.

"The court must congratulate you, Mr. Clegg," he said in his fine, metallic voice, "upon the very excellent and intricate work you have done in this case. Believe me, the law appreciates it, and I, as one of its humblest exponents, must add my admiration to the rest. Permit me, however, to ask one or two questions. In the first place, before we proceed further with the case, I should like you to give me any explanation that you can relative to the matter of what the prisoner here has told us with regard to the story of the Frozen Flame. This gentleman has said that the story goes that whenever a new victim had been claimed by the flames, that another flame appears in amongst its fellows. The prisoner has declared this to be true; in fact, has actually sworn upon oath, that he has seen this thing with his own eyes the night that Dacre Wynne was killed. I confess that upon hearing this, I had my strong suspicions of his veracity. Can you explain it any clearer?"

Clegg smiled a trifle whimsically, then he nodded.

"I can. Shortly after I made my discovery of the secret passage that led out upon the Fens—the entrance to it, by the way, was marked by a patch of charred grass about the size of a small round table (you remember, Dollops, I asked you if you noticed anything then?), that lifted up, if one had been enough eyes to discover it, and revealed the trap-door beneath—Dollops and I set out on another tour of investigation. We were determined to take a daring chance on being wind-blown by the watchful guards and have a look round behind those flames for ourselves. We did this. It happened that we slipped the guard unobserved, having knowledge, you see, of at least part of the whole blacked scheme, and getting within range of the flames without discovery, or, for that matter, seeing any one about, we got down on our hands and knees and dug into the earth with our penknives."

"What suggested this plan to you?"

Clegg smiled and shrugged his shoulders.

"Why, I had a theory, you see. And, like you, I wanted to find out if Merriton was telling the truth about that other light he had seen or not. The way was clear, Marsh-gas was there in plenty, though there is no heat from the tiny flames, as you know—from which fact, no doubt, our friend Brellier derived the very theatrical name for them, but the light of which Merriton spoke I took to be something bigger than that. And I had noticed, too, that here and there among the flames danced brilliant patches that seemed, well—more than natural. So our penknives did the trick. Dollops was digging, when suddenly something exploded, and shot up into our faces with a volume of gassy smoke. We sprang back, throwing our arms up to shield our eyes, and after the fumes had subsided returned to our task. The penknife had struck a bladder filled with gas, which, sunk into the ground, produced the larger lights, one of which Sir Nigel had seen upon the night that Wynne disappeared. Even more clever, isn't it? I wonder whose idea it originally was."

He spun round slowly upon his heel and faced the line of seated witnesses. His eyes once more traveled over the group, face to face, eye to eye, until he paused suddenly and pointed at Borkins' chair-white countenance.

"That's the man who probably did the job," he said casually. "Brellier's right-hand man, that, with a brain that might have been used for other and better things."

APPARATUS AND DEVICES

By RALPH BROWN, RADIO ENGINEER

A HANDY VARIABLE INDUCTOR

The ideal tuned circuits of experimental radio receiving stations must be capable of operating over a wide range. They should extend from 150 meters to above 20,000 meters. It is impractical to construct a single coil, even when equipped with a slider and sectionalizing switches, to cover this entire range. It has become common practice to employ several sets of coils to cover this range. If coils without taps are used, the number required is so large that it is inconvenient to make the many changes required

RADIO EXPLAINED

BY LIEUT. JOHN R. IRWIN
INSTRUCTOR U. S. AIR SERVICE

ARC TRANSMISSION

Continuing the preceding article, it should be explained that to provide the necessary hydrogenous atmosphere to envelop the arc flame, whenever available, ordinary illuminating gas is used. However, on shipboard, where such gas is unobtainable and where it is impractical to furnish cylinders of hydrogen gas, alcohol is ordinarily employed, being introduced into the arc chamber by drops, which are vaporized by the heat of the arc. Kerosene has been used, but is found objectionable, owing to the residue of soot which it leaves in the chamber.

The carbon electrode is rotated slowly by a small electrical motor, in order that its arcing surface may be worn in an even, regular manner.

In order to protect the apparatus from any explosion caused by oxygen entering the chamber and mixing with the hydrogen, an outlet is provided which is so arranged that, while providing a safety device, it prevents the admission of air.

In the larger sets automatic switches are provided for changing the wave length of the oscillatory circuit. In the smaller sets the usual hand manual switches are used. Switches are also provided for transferring the antenna system from transmitting to receiving connection.

As all vessels are not equipped with arc sets, it is necessary to provide some method of breaking the undamped waves into groups permitting communication with a device known as a "chopper," which consists of a commutator wheel driven by a small motor.

When so completely accepted a popular writer as George Barr McCutcheon chooses the period and background of 1812 for the setting of a story, we may safely assume that the historical novel is heading straight for the best-seller class.

"Viola Gwynn," McCutcheon's latest book, tells the story of an adventurous and (need we add?) handsome young man who penetrates the wilderness of Lafayette, Indiana. The way the author spreads before us the scene of life and customs of the little town in that early day is completely charming. More than that, his story rings true. The characters are cleverly sketched, especially those of the river gambler, the "judge" and the ingenious sheriff. Not so much may be said for his feminine figures, especially the heroine who reverts sadly, at times, to a pre-Victorian witlessness.

But the story is admirable from the point of historical atmosphere. The life of those frontier days, so far away in spirit, yet so comparatively near in space of time.

Uncle Wiggily

— BY HOWARD R. GARIS —

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE NUTS

When Uncle Wiggily hopped back to his hollow stump bungalow one day, after having been out looking for adventures, the bunny gentleman found a little note written on a piece of white birch bark.

"Mrs. Bushytail, the squirrel lady, left this for you," said Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, giving Mr. Longears the birch bark note.

"Hum! I wonder what it's about?" murmured the bunny gentleman as he put on his glasses and stood his red, white and blue striped rheumatism crutch up in the corner.

"Well, what is it?" asked Nurse Jane, curious like, when the rabbit had finished reading.

"I don't know. Mrs. Bushytail just asks me to run over to her nest house when I have time," said Uncle Wiggily. "I guess there isn't any special trouble there—I mean nothing to hurry about, so I'll have lunch and then hop over."

"Yes, Mrs. Bushytail said there was no special hurry," remarked the muskrat lady. "So you might as well take your time."

And after lunch, when Uncle Wiggily hopped over the fields and through the woods to the nest house of the squirrel family, Mrs. Bushytail met him at the front door.

"It's about my two new baby squirrels, Nifty and Natty," whispered Mrs. Bushytail. "They won't crack nuts."

"Oh!" said Uncle Wiggily, not exactly understanding; "so they won't crack nuts, eh?"

"No," went on Mrs. Bushytail, "and you know squirrels, to get along in this world, must learn how to crack nuts in their teeth, or else they will starve. Johnnie and Billie, my older squirrel boys, are very good nut crackers. But up to now I have been cracking nuts for Nifty and Natty myself. However, it is time they learned, but they seem to be afraid, so I thought I'd ask you to see if you could teach them. Their fathers and brothers and I haven't been able to."

Uncle Wiggily twinkled his pink nose as he said:

"Well, now, if it was to teach them to gnaw a cabbage stump, or bite a carrot I could teach them that easily enough, but you know we rabbits haven't the kind of teeth needed to crack nuts."

"I know that," whispered Mrs. Bushytail. "But you're so smart, Uncle Wiggily, and you've had so many adventures, that I'm sure you can think of a way to make Nifty and Natty crack nuts. Really there is nothing to be afraid of."

"Of course not!" laughed the bunny. "Well, I'll try. Give me some nuts and send Nifty and Natty, as well as Billie and Johnnie, out to me in the back yard."

Mrs. Bushytail gave Uncle Wiggily some hickory nuts in a birch bark basket and the bunny rabbit took them to the yard, where in a little while, came the four squirrels—the two older boys and the two new little Bushytails, Nifty and Natty.

"Now, Nifty and Natty, what is this I hear about you?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "I mean about you not cracking nuts?"

"We—we're just sorter—skeered," shyly whispered Nifty. "What are you afraid of?" asked Uncle Wiggily, smiling.

"Cause now—er—the nuts are so hard they'll break off our teeth or the sharp shells will cut our mouths!" said Natty.

"Ho! Ho!" laughed Billie and Johnnie. "Look here! We don't get cut or break our teeth!" And

MAKES REPORT OF SCOUT ACTIVITY IN DISTRICT

Executive Tells Work Done in Past Four Months by Boys of Troops

H. F. Benner, scout executive of the Verdugo Hills district council, has just compiled a report covering the activities of the Boy Scouts in this district. The report is for the months of May, June, July and August.

In making the report, Mr. Benner said:

"We believe that the foundation has been laid for a greater and more intensified development of scouting in this district, but perhaps the most gratifying thing for us all to know is that nearly 200 scouts are being trained in good citizenship."

The report, in part, follows:

We now have over 180 registered Boy Scouts in the district in nine troops, with more than forty volunteer adult leaders.

Receive Merit Badges

Twenty-eight merit badges have been qualified for. Fifty first class tests were taken. One hundred thirty-six second class tests were given. Thirty-five tenderfoot tests taken.

Three sessions of the troop leaders' roundtable have been held with a total attendance of forty.

The Catalina summer camp folder was distributed to every school boy of scout age in the district.

Eighty scouts participated in Memorial day services throughout the district.

The Glendale American Legion, Glendale Chamber of Commerce and the Knights of Columbus have agreed to sponsor Boy Scout troops.

Two new troops were organized at Burbank and La Crescenta with a membership of twenty-eight scouts.

Troop No. 2, Glendale, and troops Nos. 1 and 2, Burbank, have re-registered with a membership of seventy-two scouts.

Thirty-five additional boys have enrolled in the movement since April 31.

Four meetings of the executive board have been held, with an average attendance of eight out of ten members.

Burbank scout saves his life by prompt first aid work when bitten by a rattlesnake.

Secure New Leaders

Eight volunteers procured to serve as scoutmasters, assistant scoutmasters and troop committeemen.

Every troop in the district has received at least two visits by the scout executive. The actual visits were as follows: Glendale, nine; Burbank, four; Tujunga, seven; La Crescenta, five; and Eagle Rock, four.

During the time of this report the district office received 448, and sent out 2311 pieces of mail.

Publicity to the amount of 116 articles, totaling 1065 column inches were received through the local newspapers.

The scout executive has traveled, during the time of this report, 5620 miles in the execution of his duties. Twenty trips were made to Burbank, eleven to Tujunga, five to La Crescenta, eight to Eagle Rock, five to Pasadena and nine to Los Angeles.

Ninety-one scouts and fourteen adult leaders attended ten-day summer camp on Catalina island, July 20 to 29. Letter of commen-

Succeeds Sims As War College Head

Rear Admiral Clarence S. Williams, who succeeds Admiral Sims as head of the Naval War College at Newport, R. I., Admiral Sims retired on October 45th, and closes one of the most interesting personal naval histories of recent times. Admiral Williams was chief of the war plans section of naval operations just before the war, and previously was vice admiral of the Pacific Fleet, in charge of battleships. During the war he was chief of staff of the battleship forces of the Atlantic fleet.

Admiral Williams received from national camp director. Over 60 per cent of registered scouts attend the camp, averaging more than three tests each.

Glendale scout saves life of boy chum from drowning, due to his scout training.

The Verdugo Hills Scout put on solid footing with new editor and editorial staff of scouts.

Seven hundred people attend life saving demonstration at Glendale municipal swimming pool, August 21. This was under auspices troop leaders roundtable.

Help Chamber of Commerce

Scouts delivered 5000 civic betterment hand bills for the Glendale Chamber of Commerce in the record time of one hour.

The Court of Honor met August 31, at which thirty-one merit badges were given out.

Scouts give first aid demonstration at the University of Southern California.

Scouts render first aid to injured and located lost baseballs at the Glendale community picnic, August 16.

It is impossible to report what the Scouts have done in good turns, community service, etc., according to Chief Benner, but there is seldom a week goes by but what some call is made for Scout service in the district, and very few calls are refused.

ACCOMMODATING

A railroad detective making his early morning round in the yard, came across three negroes near some partially unloaded freight cars. Their absence was suspicious. The detective pulled out his gun and placing it against the ribs of the nearest negro bellowed, "Say, where ya goin'?"

"Boss," was the reply, "any place yo' says—any place yo' says!"

"Teachers," says a superintendent, "are better this year." The kids don't believe they could be worse.

FIRE FIGHTERS OF ENGLAND BETTER THAN AMERICA?

Londoner Who Came to Learn Says British Protection of Men Superior

By THOMAS C. WATSON
For International News Service.
LONDON—Are New York's fire fighters adequately protected? Colonel Eric Ball, president of the London county council's fire brigade department, says they are not.

According to Colonel Ball, who has just returned from a tour of inspection of New York city's fire methods, the New York firemen, clad in their shirt sleeves and not equipped with the fireproof clothing which is considered so essential to the British, are inferior as fire fighters.

In other words, Colonel Ball thinks that the London firemen are far away ahead of their New York brothers in the matter of efficiency and that the London fire department is a better organized and more capable concern than its opposite number in New York city.

Nothing to Learn

Colonel Ball was sent to New York to investigate New York's fire methods and to improve as a department. But the colonel says that London has nothing to learn from New York. In fact, New York has a lot to learn from London.

"I was present at several of the calls in New York," Colonel Ball responded, "but it seemed to me that there was not the smartness shown that we are accustomed to see in London."

"There is, for instance, no rule as to the men staying in the stations, and on one or two occasions I saw fire engines and escapes outside, while the men were all over the place. They also went to the fires in their shirt sleeves and were not as fully protected as the London men are."

"The brigades did not turn out with the speed of the London brigades. The New York fireman gets inside the building, finds the root of the trouble and directs the flow of water onto it first of all. That is why London has so few instances of big fires spreading to any great extent."

"The water power is greater in New York, but that is necessary owing to the greater height of the buildings. Their water floats are splendid, but there again their water space is so much more extensive than that of our old Thames."

"New York is certainly up-to-date in its fire equipment, and I greatly admired their system of alarm; complete public facilities are given for conveying notices of any outbreaks. But for helpful tips I looked in vain."

BUSINESS PROBLEM NO. 1

"There is a law which prohibits the printing of false statements on manufactured goods."

Then how in Sam Hill does the label get by on a hotel hot-water faucet?

"After a strenuous effort of several months on the part of the Calhoun pass committee, the county surveyor has just made a preliminary survey of that important highway so as to be able to make an estimate of the cost of such an improvement. His report is to be ready the coming week. That does not mean that the supervisors are to order the work started at once. The proposition will be lost if some of the valley go-getters are not on the job to fight for the next step. The next step is to get the supervisors to take over the pass highway and place on the coming year's budget sufficient funds to have the highway built."

"One of the very best possible road propositions in the valley is the opening up and construction of Riverside drive, yet at this moment the proposition is at a dead standstill. The go-getters have slackened speed, that's all. Calhoun pass accommodations are for a limited part of the valley; Riverside drive will serve every section of the valley from Glendale to Chatsworth. Starting at Lankershim, it will pick up traffic from Sherman Way and Lankershim boulevard. Burbank, with its busy San Fernando boulevard, can easily make a gravity highway to connect with Glendale, Eagle Rock and the town of the Green Verdugo hills section will have a connection at Griffith park. It will be the ideal highway; wide, with few cross streets, few curves or corners, a gravity road, beautiful country and easy access into the heart of the city—Sunset boulevard, Second and Third street tunnels, and via the plaza. A 100-foot right-of-way all free of cost is awaiting the board of supervisors, but no action has been taken. The fault does not all lie with the board. Both the Calhoun pass and Riverside drive problems came to a head too late to be entered in last year's budget. The most important work for the go-getters is to get in early and have these two propositions in the budget for the coming year before the funds are all gone. Once the funds are provided for the supervisors will do the rest."

COMMENT THAT'S ALL

Country Paper Near Ideal About English Politics Community Work Needed 'Go Getters' Hop to It!

By Gil A. Cowan

DISCUSSING an ideal newspaper, Editor Rhinehard, of Covina, told the members of the Southern California Editorial Association that "There ain't no such animal!"

But reaching toward the ideal is the game of life, according to this veteran publisher, who spoke as if inspired. He spared not the lash, either, in condemning the salacious sensations to be found in the metropolitan papers.

"The country newspaper comes nearer to what I consider the ideal," said Mr. Rhinehard, "than any other, because it reflects the ideas and ideals of its editor who is close to his people."

There is something for you to contemplate as you read the columns of your home paper. Remember, the Glendale Evening News represents the ideals of this community, being independent of dictation and outside direction.

Today, for a change, we will present the views of others on current subjects, the following being taken from David M. Church's news letter from London to International News Service:

"The political pots are beginning to simmer. Although parliament is not scheduled to reconvene until early winter, the politicians are returning from their vacation haunts and the political writers are getting busy once again and rumors and predictions are rife."

"The latest report is that Lloyd George favors a general election in January. It is reported that he feels that the favors of political fortunes are once again upon him."

Hague well in the background he can again go before the people. Strange to say it is believed by the best political experts that if the prime minister goes to the country that he will find it more expedient to use domestic issues. There are indications that the administration is preparing to reduce the tax on beer, and if it can bring this about then it will be well prepared to face an election."

"While the enemy camps are astir there are few signs in Downing street of political activity. The prime minister's chief concern for the last few weeks has been a reduction in his golf handicap. The prime minister spent a great part of his vacation golfing in Surrey, and his form was so excellent that the handicap committee decided to reduce the P. M.'s handicap from 15 to 12."

"Vacations are over, summer is gone and fall is here. It is high time that the district gets settled down to its community planning and get something accomplished," says Cecil Wilcox in the Lankershim Lancer, to which he adds the following, of great interest to Glendale:

"The most important proposition before the district as a whole are: The usual door control problem, the immediate construction of the new boulevard, Riverside drive and the reconstruction of Calhoun pass. These problems concern almost everybody in the valley, yet but little is being done. These improvements will not work themselves out. It will take a bunch of go-getters constantly on the job to get any kind of results. The board of supervisors is a busy body, with no time to bring up before their meetings the thousand problems before them. Somebody must be on the job to do the presenting, not once but dozens of times if necessary."

"After a strenuous effort of several months on the part of the Calhoun pass committee, the county surveyor has just made a preliminary survey of that important highway so as to be able to make an estimate of the cost of such an improvement. His report is to be ready the coming week. That does not mean that the supervisors are to order the work started at once. The proposition will be lost if some of the valley go-getters are not on the job to fight for the next step. The next step is to get the supervisors to take over the pass highway and place on the coming year's budget sufficient funds to have the highway built."

"One of the very best possible road propositions in the valley is the opening up and construction of Riverside drive, yet at this moment the proposition is at a dead standstill. Use Jazz Band, and Cows Increase Milk

LOS ANGELES—Many tricks have been tried on chickens to fool them into thinking that night was day and thus lay twice as many eggs.

But Walter C. Brooks, business manager of a Santa Monica dairy, has gone one better and fooled a herd of cows, so he says. He has not quite convinced them night was day, but with the aid of a jazz band Bossy, when milked, gives better milk and more of it, Brooks claims.

Few Gray Squirrels In Woods of Maine

BIDDEFORD, Maine.—Gray squirrels are fast disappearing in the Maine woods and, according to a local lumber dealer, who spends much time in the woods, the small animal is almost extinct in some places. Where he has seen hundreds of red and gray squirrels running in the wood he didn't see any gray during a five-days' trip. There are a few red squirrels.

Partridges and other birds are also scarce. Sportsmen here favor a closed season for a year or two.

William Tell Game Cause of Big Suit

CINCINNATI, O.—A modern game of "William Tell and the Apple" has come to light in the Common Pleas Court of Hamilton County in the form of a $10,000 damage suit filed against the father of a youngster whose eye stopped the shaft meant for the apple. It is alleged that Roy Twenhofel, twelve, shot out the left eye of William O. Perry, eight, and damages are asked because the father of Twenhofel is said to be responsible for allowing his son to play with a "dangerous weapon."

Drug Running Hard Problem In Pacific

HONOLULU—Unless an international agreement can be effected, Collector H. E. Murray doubts whether merchant vessels plying the Pacific between the Orient, Honolulu and coast ports will be permitted to mount artillery, as has been suggested by those interested here in suppressing the opium traffic.

"Guns are the only effective weapon against the dope runners," Murray says. "Airplanes have been suggested, but the smuggling sampans would put out still farther to sea if they were forced to; they can stay out ten days or so if they have to. A tin of opium f. o. b. the ship costs about $52. Selling here at $100 or more, the profit is $5000 the hundred."

Fashion Center Is

M. J. McKinnon
Buyer and part owner of the Fashion Center, Glendale's new store for women.

In the opening of The Fashion Center at 202 South Brand boulevard, Glendale has acquired in the person of M. J. McKinnon, buyer and part owner, a live new member for the city's business colony and an enthusiastic member of the Chamber of Commerce and the Merchants Credit Association.

Mr. McKinnon, who presides over the ready-to-wear department as buyer of coats, suits, dresses, blouses, furs, sweaters and petticoats, comes to Glendale with a wide experience and the reputation of being one of the youngest buyers in the country.

Since entering his business career, Mr. McKinnon has been connected as buyer with the Weinstock Lubin company in Sacramento; the Bon Marche in Seattle; the Crescent in Spokane and Daly Brothers in Eureka. By bi-annual trips to New York buying for these stores, Mr. McKinnon has developed his ability to select for the buying public, and the real worth of his ability may best be proven by the popularity of his departments wherever he has been employed.

To the patrons and friends of The Fashion Center it may be interesting to note that Mr. McKinnon is a Scotchman and a native of Nova Scotia. During the world war he served four years as chief radio operator with the United States Navy, making fourteen trips across the Atlantic. His service abroad afforded him opportunities for studying foreign shops, styles and materials, the knowledge of which has been invaluable in his business. Mr. McKinnon is a fourth degree Knight of Columbus and he plans to become an active member of the Glendale council.

Among the interesting garments included in the present stock in Mr. McKinnon's department at the Fashion Center, is a wonderfully striking Laskin seal coat, which is to be given away on the occasion of the formal opening of the shop. The shop will be formally opened as soon as the other stores in the building are completed and occupied, the exact date to be announced later.

Many Americans

LONDON.—Points of interest are numerous in London, oddities are many, and to the English and to the Londoner, the American tourist is always a thing of great interest.

Americans have swarmed into London and supplied amusement for Londoners for the last six months. The London newspapers get a thrill out of all Americans and can't understand them. Arthur David, writing in the Daily Express, gives a fair example of the curiosity which the British press has for Americans and the curious conception of what Americans are like.

"Americans are lured by 'The Cheese,'" says David, in an article which follows: "Every day during the season of the American invasion there is a steady stream of them down Fleet street."

From Many States
"From Wisconsin they come, from Georgia, Pennsylvania, Mississippi, Illinois, Minnesota and every other part of God's own country. The men in circular soft felt hats; the women in flat toques, tartan capes and plaids; the young girls in embroidered coats and skirts; the young boys in—but, now I come to think of it, there never are any young boys. I wonder why. Probably they stop behind to learn business methods, while their sisters acquire 'culchaw.'"

"However, day by day, as I remarked, these invaders stream down Fleet street. A delicate compliment, one might say, to the Fourth Estate!"

"Alas! truth will out. It is not the renown of the British press that attracts our amiable cousins. The trap is baited with cheese—it is the lure of the Cheshire Cheese. From their pile-carpeted suites in the great hotels they flock to lunch at this Old World city inn, with its sawdusted floors and pewter pots."

"A never-ceasing stream. Two hundred and fifty to three hundred of them lunch there every day of the American season."

Hunts of the Great
"And the attractions? The call of Dickens, the novelist even more beloved in America perhaps than in England, and of that stalwart Englishman, Samuel Johnson. "The lunch hour begins early, because it is the first arrival who is likely to secure the honor of sitting in Charles Dickens's seat. What a story to tell one's cronies in Buglesville or to recount to one's grandchildren: the tale of the wanderers of London, of the scarlet and gold of the guards, of the mediaeval splendors of the lord mayor's coach, leading up to the grand climax, following a dramatic pause: 'And then, my dears, I lunched at the Chesh-I-RE Cheese and sat in Charles Dickens's seat!'"

"Perhaps they did; perhaps they did not. I have heard it rumored that the coveted seat, after occupied, an American paterfamilias has been conducted to another corner and assured in a whisper that he was in the chair usually occupied by the master. "Johnson, too, has his admirers, but here the knowledge of our visitors is somewhat hazy. The doctor is frequently referred to as 'Ben Johnson'; and, after all these years, what does it matter?"

"A privileged and understanding few are allowed to visit the greatest wonders of the old inn—the vaulted cellars, which have withstood the passage of six centuries, and where charred oak rafters show the ravages of the great fire of London, in 1666."

"There's memory for you! There's history! Think of the doors when these cellars formed the crypt of an ancient monastery; come and look at the old subterranean iron gate, made of fine old Sussex iron, smelted in charcoal fire and welded by those old monks of fourteen hundred and something. See the entrance to the passage—walled up now—that used to lead below the river to the far bank, through which many a fugitive has sought sanctuary!"

"But it is only the privileged and understanding few who may see these things. The rest drift out through the narrow court to Fleet street, where loafers wait to show them to their waiting cars. Some pause, attracted by a gleam of scarlet. An old Chelsea pensioner from the hospital, with tales to tell of the Crimea and battles of old. He, too, saunters up Fleet street day by day at this time of the year; for he, too, has heard the Americans are in town."

Students Have Way to Beat Rail Fare

PHILADELPHIA.—Many students returning from their summer vacations have adopted a novel method to obtain free transportation. They have bought venerable flippers in their home towns for trifling sums, overhauled them and made the trip to Philadelphia. After their arrival here they repainted the cars, overhaul them again and endeavor to sell them for more than the purchase price plus the gas and oil. In one instance a car bought for $75 sold for $100 after making the trip from Indiana to Philadelphia.

Fashion Show Proves Complete Success

by Mrs. E. C. Pendroy and music by Mrs. L. N. Hagood, presented by seven pupils of Pearl Keller Brattain, who created the dance for the occasion. In this group were Helen Orr, Shirley Hitchcock, Cecilia Mae Fischer, Glen Hitchcock, Evelyn Hunt, Leona Hunt and Dorothy Dutton of Glendale. These young women were very charming evening gowns of pastel colored taffetas, with the bouffant skirt still in vogue for the young miss, and also of satins.

A display of fall suits, blouses, hats and accessories worn by seven professional models from Los Angeles were next presented. The Russian blouse effect, as well as the loose hanging coat, all fur trimmed were included in the model display. A very chic model was a navy blue with three-quarter length semi-tailored coat with slit sides outlined with buttons. This was worn with a grey fox fur and black hat trimmed with silver cloth. The three-piece suits are continuing their popularity. A very interesting costume shown was of brown, with cuffed sleeves, the waist of the costume being of a paisley pattern. This was worn with a velvet hat in brown and henna. Another interesting three-piece costume showed the waist of tan crepe-de-chine with skirt of brown pan velaine, straps of this material extending from the shoulders. The Russian blouse coat of this suit was trimmed with beaver. A Rawak hat of tan and brown pheasant feather and bronze beaded bag completed the costume. Blue and black follow a close second to brown for the suits. Caracul fur trimmings are very popular.

Hats on Display
The next scene was a very interesting spot light showing of hats, including Jeanne, Reboux, Rawak and Pendroy's creations. The light was thrown alternatingly on four of the models who displayed hats for street wear of velvet, felt, metal cloth and larger hats of velvet with lace trimmings for afternoon wear.

Gowns Delight
The first scene in act two was a song and dance number "Smiles," given by Evelyn and Leona Hunt, introducing sport costumes. Miss Gertrude Champ-lain accompanied them at the piano. These two young misses wore sports apparel of pink knitted sweaters, grey felt hats and grey pleated skirts. A display of sport costumes, knitwear, golf and auto togs was next shown by the professional models. Included in this display were gray tweed knicker suits worn with grey felt hats, poncee waists and sport shoes, tan tweed knicker suits with green checks worn with Nile green hat, a grey wool knitted sport dress with orange and black design worn with grey felt hat trimmed with orange and black flower. A very striking sports costume included a black and orange sweater and scarf, novelty wool pleated skirt and brown hat.

trim and platinum fur neckpiece. The street dresses showed the cape effect and were trimmed with braiding or embroidery. The wide sleeves, slashed and faced with contrasting colors were favored.

Mrs. Harry McMullin, gowned in a charming costume of brown satin and Spanish lace, gave a delightful vocal solo, "Rose of My Heart."

Street coats follow the tendency of very wide sleeves, suspended from which was often seen long silk tassels. Some of the coats had long side panels. A very lovely coat model was of maroon color geona cloth, with white fur collar. This was embroidered in gold thread. Black and blue velvet with the browns for popularity, and for trimmings there was the choice of beaver, fox, mole or caracul. Some of the coats were very "wrappy" affairs similar to the dolmans.

Styles Attract
Miss Marie Gray, accompanied at the piano by Miss Lila Litch of the Emerson School of Expression, gave a musical reading, "Annual Protest." Miss Gray wore a black velvet afternoon gown with royal blue trim.

A very interesting afternoon gown shown was of black print with horizontal tucks, the sleeves being lined with Nile green, and was worn with a stone martin fur and black hat trimmed with peacock feather. Another charming creation was of coco brown, with long slit sleeves caught at the wrist and pleated side panels giving the uneven skirt line. A tomato colored canton crepe with long side drapes, trimmed with black and silver flowers, worn with a black velvet and lace hat, drew forth much admiration. Another popular model was of brown velvet, with brown and gold brocade sleeves, worn with a brown fur, and hat. For afternoon and street wear slippers combining the strapped effect with the new Colonial were favored.

Following the showing, Mrs. McMullin sang Schubert's "Ave Maria," by request. She wore a handsome gown of white satin and Spanish lace, with crystal beaded girdle. Accompanying her was Miss Linkogel, violinist; Mrs. Emma Hopkins, harpist, and Paul Carson, organist. Two very interesting harp solos were next given by Mrs. Hopkins. She wore a very beautiful evening gown of green satin with beaded tunic.

Express Appreciation
On behalf of the members of the Tuesday Afternoon club, Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, chairman of the ways and means committee, and as an appreciation of the work of Mrs. E. C. Pendroy, under whose personal direction the fashion show was given, presented her with a basket of roses. She also thanked Mr. Howe for the use of the theatre and also the various artists who assisted in making the show a success.

The showing of evening gowns, wraps and furs, Spanish shawls and combs, and footwear completed the fashion revue. A very simple but striking gown was of tangerine georgette crepe, with draped sleeves reaching to the hem and black jet trimmings, completing the costume being a black ostrich fan and large Spanish comb. A more elaborate gown was of black satin over which was a heavily beaded tunic of Chantilly lace with a slight touch of jade and with which was carried a jade ostrich fan. Alice blue and silver, jade and silver and brown and silver were other combinations used. A very beautiful gown was of brown velvet with long side panels, worn with large Spanish comb with emerald insets and jade ear-rings, with which was carried an orange-colored ostrich fan tipped with jade. A very rich looking evening gown was of gold and black brocade with very long draped skirt trimmed with jet. The side panel of the skirt formed the train. With this costume was worn a high comb and it was completed with a black ostrich fan.

Program Success
A very gorgeous evening wrap was of navy geona cloth, beautifully embroidered in gray, with gray fox fur collar and bottom and lined with gray crepe-de-chine. Capes of mole, wraps of orange velvet and other rich materials were also included in the showing. The evening slippers were often shown in plain and brocade satin, either in crossed strap effect or with large steel beaded buckles.

As an interesting finale to a very delightful program was given the "Garden Dance" number by Misses Helen Orr, Shirley Hitchcock, Cecilia Mae Fischer, Leona Hunt, Glen Hitchcock, Dorothy Dutton and Evelyn Hunt. The program was one of great interest to the large number of people who attended both the afternoon and evening performances, which were given against a most effective stage setting of black velvet, and futuristic floral trimmings as a background.

State Inquiry Into Mine Tragedy Starts

JACKSON, Cal., Sept. 27.—With the coronal investigation of the death of forty-seven miners in the Argonaut mine completed, the way was paved today for the opening of the state probe, which will be conducted by a committee of three appointed by Governor Stephens. In the meantime Dyrton O. Pickard, representative of the state bureau of mines, who led the rescue work, has completed a report which will be filed with authorities.

The jury after two days' testimony and an hour's deliberation, returned a verdict that the miners came to their death "by suffocation from poisonous gas fumes caused by fire of unknown origin near the 3,000 level in the main shaft of the Argonaut mine, after they had bulkheaded themselves in on the 4,350 cross-cut, having no means of escape which was free from gas."

While no responsibility was fixed in the verdict for the conditions which made impossible escape of the miners, the jury made the following recommendations: "We hereby recommend that in the future the Argonaut Mining company and the Kennedy Mining company be compelled to keep and maintain an opening with proper doors at one of the lower levels."

"We further recommend that in the future more precautions be taken to prevent fires and that better fire fighting facilities be maintained at proper levels and shafts of the Argonaut mine, against the repetition of such a disaster." Search continued today for the body of William Fessel as yet unrecovered.

Property In Ohio Is Sold for Taxes

AKRON.—Property valued at $1,737,688 has been sold under the hammer in Summit county since December 9, 1921. M. B. Thorpe, chief deputy sheriff, announced. This extremely large total is caused for the most part by the industrial depression which forced many persons to give up mortgaged homes.

Local Man Writes of Like for State

When folks begin asking Alfred French, 412½ East Harvard street how he liked Southern California, he composed a poem.

Although here but three months, Mr. French is a strong booster for California and especially Glendale. The poem which he has just written follows:

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA
This coast is not the solitude of an unpeopled land,
Its climate beckons to all the world with a friendly hand,
To come and find the nearest heaven on this earth to live,
Where God to young and old has always something good to give.

Here meager incomes find relief in humble bungalows,
Where pleasures add to happiness where the automobile goes.

Continued days of sunshine appear like a golden chain,
When one can go and shop or work without the fear of rain.

And when the weary worker homeward goes his weary way,
He knows the Lord's electric fans will never cease to play.

He sees the glow of early evening on the mountain tops,
And over all the land the robe of darkness quickly drops.

Then comes the cooling air to give the weary body rest,
And wraps consoling blankets that delightful sleep suggest.

The cooling air remains until the morning sun appears,
Reluctant to depart and lingers like sweet wine that cheers.

The mountains and the ocean seem to harmonize and try,
To make a place for men to live and not to go to die.

Then let us not forget when friends from far meet here to dine,
That God has made this strange land with matchless skill divine.

Issue Court Order to Protect Women

AKRON.—If fear of the electric chair at Ohio State Penitentiary will not save the lives of two women from the blood lust of their husbands, from whom they are seeking divorce, perhaps they will be restrained by injunctions issued in Common Pleas Court by Judge H. C. Spicer.

The judge, on the application of the women, who declared their lives were in danger, issued the restraining orders asked.

GUY BATES POST IN MASTERPIECE

The Masquerader at T. D. L. Theatre Pleases Large Audiences Here

Many have always wondered why Guy Bates Post, one of the most distinguished actors on the stage, resisted the lure of the films.

Last night was witnessed his first picture, a screen version of "The Masquerader," prepared by Richard Walton Tully, at the T. D. & L. theatre, and an expression of regret is added to the former wonderment because Post had not come to motion pictures sooner.

For the newest star in the film firmament is one of its most brilliant.

The most outstanding feature of the entire production from the brilliant work of the star down through the performance of the lowliest bit by any of the "extras" is the fact that it carries the conviction of the highest type of drama.

Convict Away Year On Two-Base Hit

WHEELING, W. Va.—Harry Milton, the only convict who ever escaped from prison on a two-base hit, has been landed back in his cell after a year of freedom. Milton admitted that he had run from coast to coast on the hit. He escaped in the excitement of a close baseball game at the Moundsville penitentiary. The bases were full at the time. At this critical stage of the game, the batter banged out a two-bagger. As the crowd of convicts danced in excitement, Milton leisurely left his post at the ticket gate, carrying all the receipts, and strolled out of the prison yard to freedom. Nobody saw him, but when he was missed the hunt was on in earnest. The game had been for a benefit fund.

Milton had won the confidence of Capt. A. W. Athey of the prison guards, and he was picked to handle the box office. Recently, walking down a back street in Wheeling, Athey saw his man. He recognized him behind a dyed beard and new clothes. Milton ran, but Captain Athey overtook him.

Nervous Stomach CAUSES GAS

Gas in the stomach and bowels doesn't always result from indigestion, improper diet or the fermentation of food. In most cases it is due to a highly sensitive condition of the stomach nerves.

To get rid of the trouble, you must build up and strengthen these weak, irritated nerves of the stomach. Taking artificial digesters, such as pepsin or bismuth, only makes the stomach weaker than ever. It is like using dope to deaden a pain—the relief given is deceptive and harmful.

Baummann's Gas Tablets act directly upon the affected nerves and gradually assist in restoring them to their natural healthy state. Gas and bloating will quickly disappear, and you will no longer be bothered with pain around your heart, palpitation, shortness of breath, eructation at the pit of the stomach or distress after eating, due to gas. Ask for Baummann's Gas Tablets in the famous yellow package. Price 25¢. Sold by J. Baummann, Chemist, San Francisco.—Advertisement.

Steam Roller Used for London Hearse

LONDON—The body of George Trice went to its grave in a steam-roller instead of a hearse.

Trice worked for twenty-five years as a driver of a steam roller, and expressed his wish that he might be taken to the grave in the machine which he had operated for many years. His wish was fulfilled, despite the incongruity of the funeral procession.

SAYS POLICE ARE COURTEOUS HERE

Glendale Woman Is Pleased With Manner In Which Department Works

Glendale has one of the most courteous and efficient police departments of any California city. This was the statement today of Mrs. C. M. Owen, 305 West Stocker street.

According to Mrs. Owen, it was recently necessary to find a new home for a dog which came into the possession of her children. Not knowing where to take it, the animal was taken to the police station.

There, she states, she was treated in a very courteous manner, the officers offering to find a new, permanent home for the animal or, if she desired, a temporary one. "While I don't care for the dog now," she said, "I have been tempted to visit the station again just to thank them for their courtesy."

The man who starts out to play politics should first prepare for the game by learning how to play possum.

Paris Police Hard to Reach at Night

PARIS—"Allo-allo! Mademoiselle, I asked for Anteuil 09-74, if you please."

"No answer, Monsieur."

"Outrageous! Mademoiselle, I am calling the police station of my quarter."

10 o'clock, and the officers do not answer after 10 in the evening. There is no use insisting. This was the experience of a good Parisian who had urgent need of the police one evening not long ago. He found out by bitter experience that after an early hour in the evening one must telephone to the Central Police and Fire Department. It may be a long distance, and your house may be burned down or the burglar gone before any help comes—but then, this is Paris.

URGES SCIENCE BE USED TO REDUCE SOCIETY'S ILLS

Captain Hobson Gives Plan at C. of C. Meet; Civic Questions Discussed

"The race is out of harmony with nature, and is sick. We must relieve the ills. Scientists are just beginning to study the ills of society as they do individual ills."

"They are now establishing chairs in universities throughout the world to study the ills of society. The human race is out of harmony with the line of progress and development. Most of the ills affecting society are caused by nature. Humans are killing themselves."

Tells Early History

Captain Hobson then went back to the time he was in Washington when the question of prohibition came up. At first he was inclined to leave such matters to the local authorities and others, he said, but, as he found that the others on the committee discussing the problem knew practically nothing about it, he decided to investigate the subject.

Information for scientific research was secured from all parts of the world. The resources of the government were placed at his command, and he studied alcohol from the scientific side.

Later he is said to have introduced a resolution in congress which put prohibition in the Eighteenth amendment. A lot of opposition was experienced at that time, he declared, and he was told that he was up against a stone wall, and that he would be thrown out of politics.

"I was trying to give the scientific treatment for the diseases of ages," he said, "but I found no sympathy from anyone." Ten Americans were asked to join with him and each contribute $1000 which was spent in sending out pamphlets disclosing his findings on the subject of alcohol.

Found Big Demand

A big demand was said to have been created for the pamphlets, and soon many organizations were demanding an amendment to the constitution to change the policies of a century. "If all happened so quick that nobody knew what had happened," he said.

"Scientific truth will put the individual on guard and will stir the motives of preserving home, state and people of the world."

For years Captain Hobson is said to have tried in vain to get organizations to take up a great organization program. In March, 1921, the Alcohol Education association was formed in Los Angeles. At the present time Captain Hobson is the president.

A meeting is to be held on the first of October in Berlin to map out a research program. The problem then will be to utilize their findings. The plans are to incorporate the findings in the educational centers of the world.

Many Charter Committees
At the present time there are 123 charter committees in as many cities.

A meeting is scheduled for Pasadena next week, when some of the findings will be announced. On October 4 a meeting is to be held in Glendale at the Union high school. All of those present at the meeting were invited to attend the Glendale meeting.

At the conclusion of his talk, Captain Hobson told his hearers what is in alcohol.

"Alcohol throws any living thing out of harmony with nature," he declared.

As a result of the research, the young generation will have education and know what enemies are waiting for them, he declared. All other species know what will destroy themselves, he said, so human being should be taught the same things.

In closing Captain Hobson said: "Won't you help us?"

City Sewer Problem

In telling of the need for a sewer system for Glendale, Dr. Russell related how the sewer problem has long been under observation by the Civic committee of the Glendale Chamber of Commerce, which includes representatives from the different improvement associations in the city.

She told the gathering that "now is the time to connect up with Los Angeles" so that the city may take advantage of the new outfall sewer system, which is to be constructed by that city under a $12,000,000 bond issue. The city council at a meeting last week started official action toward securing such connection.

The new system in Los Angeles will not be ready until 1927, and in the meantime it will be necessary for Glendale to prepare a temporary sewage disposal plant.

"It looks as though we have a practical solution to the sewage problem in Glendale," said Dr. Russell. "In the meantime we must remember that we cannot remain a cesspool town. We need a temporary plant in the meantime, with the tieup plan in view."

It was moved by Peter Ferry that the Chamber of Commerce back the city trustees in the effort being made to connect with Los Angeles on the proposition. It was seconded by Roy L. Kent, and carried.

While the question was before the chamber members, Mattison B. Jones asked Dr. Russell to explain more fully just what should be done in the way of a temporary solution. Dr. Russell then made a short explanation of what was under advisement.

It is known that Mrs. Beal had been married some years ago and that her two sons were living with their father in Dayton.

Navy Joins With Army In Anti-Government Uprising; March on Athens

he was preparing a manifesto asking the people to refrain from bloodshed.

Belief is prevalent that a military dictatorship will be established. Talk of the receding of former Premier Venizelos is again heard at Athens.

According to unofficial advices, the revolution started in the Greek navy and spread to the army. Dispatches received here up to noon said the revolutionary movement was making "progress."

Airmen were reported to have joined the rebels, sailing over Saloniki and other cities in the eastern part of Greece dropping pamphlets calling upon the people to rise up against Constantine.

The anti-dynastic movement in Greece began with the defeat of the Greek army by the Turks in Asia and culminated with the allied note of Saturday which took away from Greece nearly half of the Thracian territory that had been awarded to her under the treaty of Sevres.

New Sewer System Will Soon Operate

exposed to the air, the idea that there will be any odor connected with the operation of this plant is ridiculed by those who are authorities on the advanced sludge method of sewage disposal. They point out the fact that the aeration of the sewage keeps it in constant action and therefore prevents it from becoming stagnant and chemical action which causes putrefaction.

Directed by Local Men
Plans for this plant were prepared by J. F. Johannsen, chief draughtsman for the city engineering department. The plant was installed under the direction of L. D. Fish, superintendent of construction for the public service department.

A small power house about nine by eighteen feet in size with a concrete floor and wooden walls and roof adjoins the tanks to the west. This houses two electrically-driven air compressors, each of which has a capacity of eighty cubic feet of air a minute. These will force air into the bottom of the tanks at a pressure of ten pounds per square inch.

The cost of installing this plant has not been calculated yet, but it is estimated by Mr. Fish that it will be around $9000. The cost of operation is unknown. The two principal items of expense will be the salary paid the caretaker and the cost of electrical power. As these should not exceed $100 a month, the cost of operation divided among 2500 families would be 4 cents a family per month.

Frelinghuysen Wins Republican Primary

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 27.—Apparently assured of re-nomination by the republican party in yesterday's primary elections, United States Senator Frelinghuysen began laying plans today for a vigorous campaign for re-election in the November election. Returns today indicated that Senator Frelinghuysen had defeated George L. Record for the republican nomination by a plurality estimated at from 80,000 to 100,000.

Senator Frelinghuysen at his headquarters in Raritan, announced his platform would be ready for presentation to the voters by Saturday. Prohibition, Senator Frelinghuysen said, will be the principal issue of the campaign. He will be opposed by Governor Edward I. Edwards, who won the Democratic senatorial nomination without opposition.

Governor Edwards has announced his support of efforts to obtain modification of the Volstead act. Frelinghuysen has supported prohibition legislation in the senate.

Student Body tickets, which cost $1.50, admit their holder to all school athletic contests and debates.
